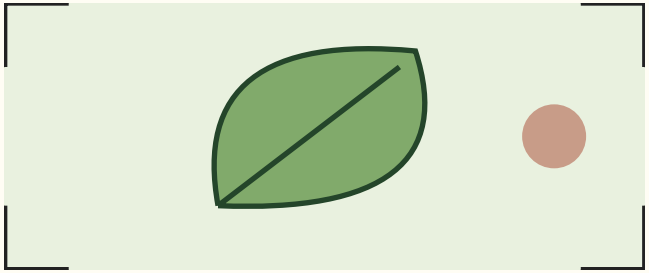
At the next gate, the reader stops to write. A single leaf has caught the light and deserves a closer look.

The most useful observation keeps its original context. A small mark can bring an old idea back into focus.



Original	Revised
useful	different words

The reader closes the notebook and continues along the path. Later, these words and the little drawing will bring the observation back to mind.

Beyond the gate, the garden opens onto another quiet path.